ONWARD TO VICTORY

NEW ATHENS HIGH WILL WIN

WHEN THE TEAM COMES OUT,

WE WILL LOUDLY SHOUT;

AND WILL CHEER FOR ALL OUR MEN. RAH! RAH!

WE'RE PURPLE and GOLD

THEY'RE YELLOW JACKETS BOLD;

KNOWING THEY'LL STING, WE'LL ALWAYS SING

AND BACK THEM TO THE END.

New Athens, Illinois
Volume XXIII

Dedicated to One Who Himself Is Dedicated

The staff wishes to bring into the spotlight one who is deserving of NACHS's attention. His contributions are quiet ones. During the past eight years, he has patiently endeavored to teach his students the fundamentals and principles of the various sciences. As if this weren't enough to fill his schedule, he plans the entire program for the audio-visual aids department and supervises the darkroom staff. During his "off" hours he has devoted his time and ability toward the leadership of the Explorers and has successfully organized a chess club for the students.

As a gesture of thanks and respect, we dedicate this book to you, Mr. Allen A. Free, hoping that it will serve as a tangible symbol of the thanks that every student at NACHS owes you.

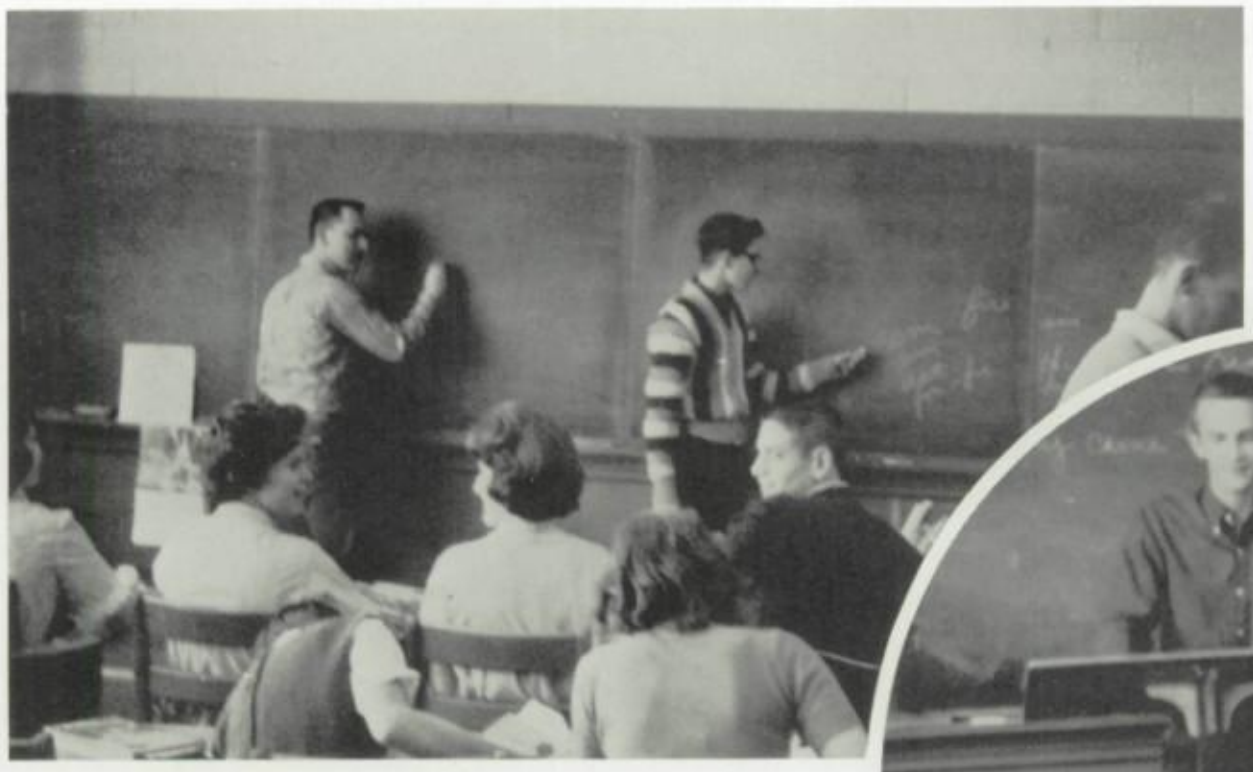
Will the real Dr. Einstein please step forward???



No teacher . . . no Spanish . . . no work!!

Lynn, are you heckling Roger again??

Humanities

Silence while the genius thinks.

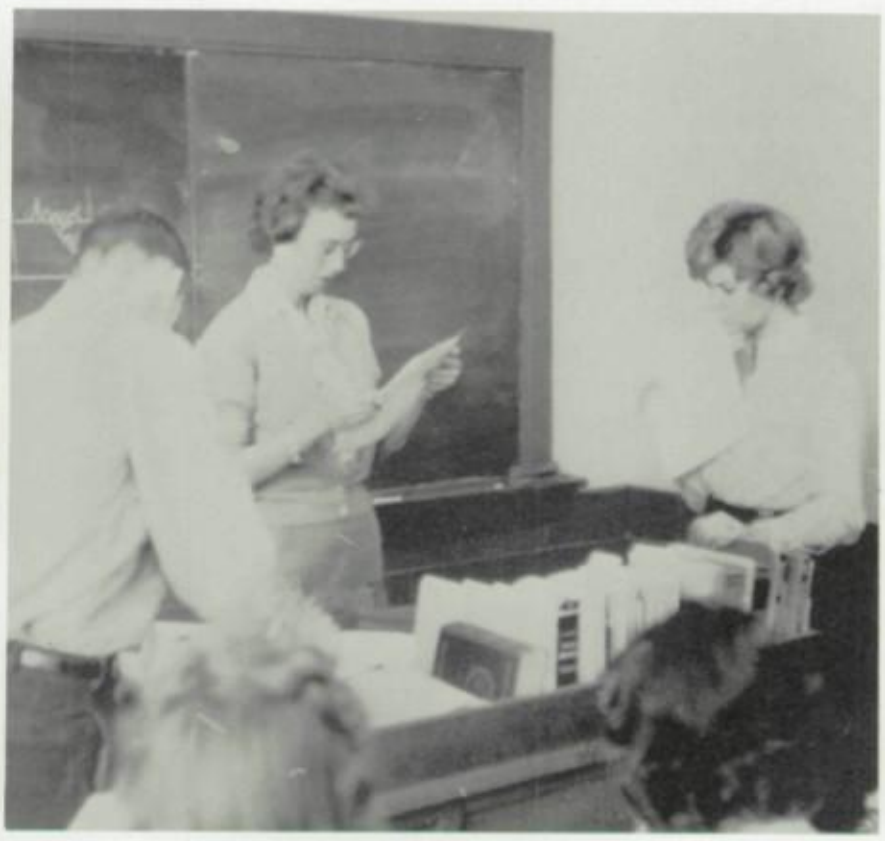
Gee, Mr. Hough--another test??

From the serious looks on their faces, Jon and Rich apparently are solving a world problem!

Hey, Mr. Ritter, tell us the joke, too.

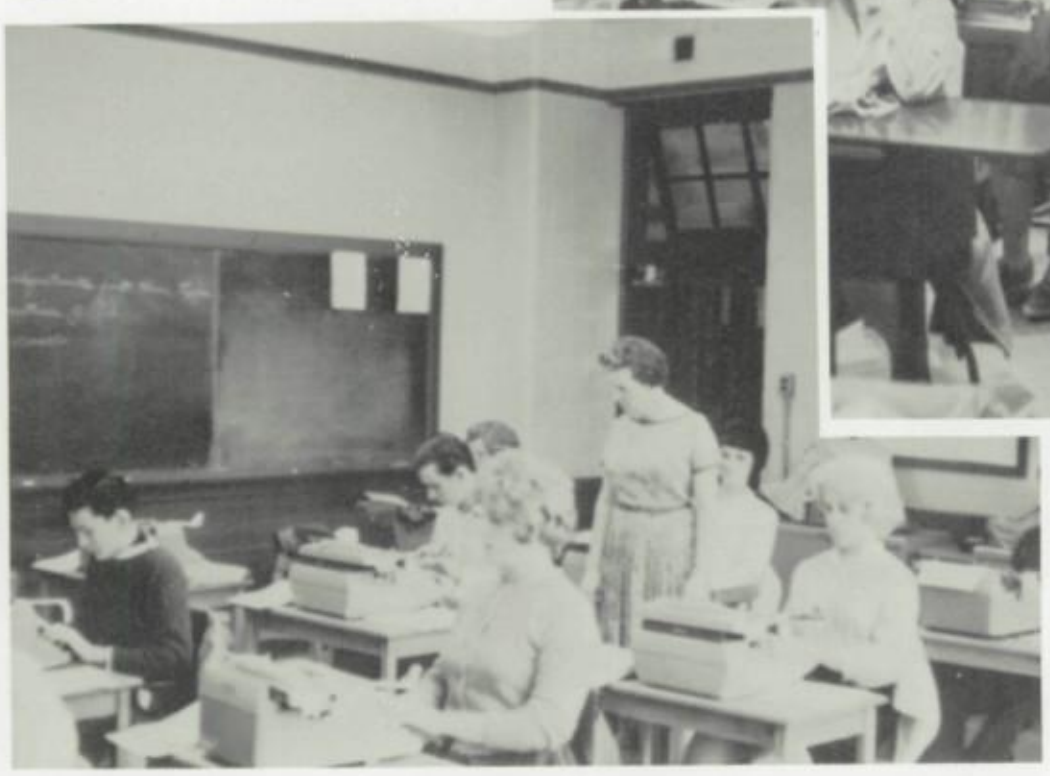
Humanities

Is there a minor disagreement in the front row??



Judy, would you rather eat your book report than hand it in??

Hey, Iris, what are you doing behind the teacher's back?



Lynette, did you lose your sewing machine again?

La Vie Paree

Two Juniors, Wayne Weidemann and Donna Wolf, reigned as King and Queen under the Eiffel Tower at the Junior-Senior Prom.

What looks, what legs, what features, what - ?

The messieurs, with their mademoiselles, entered Paris after a stroll through the enchanting French countryside. Reaching the gate, the couples applied for passports into the city for a wonderful evening of merry-making. Upon entering, the tourists found themselves right in the heart of old Paris. If one's heart so desired, he could sit at the sidewalk cafe and listen to a French band play delightful dancing music; or take a pleasant tour through a streetside modern art gallery. On the other side of the rue, there was a quaint garden, where lending to the romantic atmosphere, there was a fountain from which pink water to lighten thy heart was bubbling merrily. All this, combined with excellent food, a starry night, and fine music made up an exciting and not-to-be-forgotten evening.

Yipes! Stripes! Whoops! Only the servers.

G.A.A.

Is this the afternoon kindergarten class?

"Nobody can say I am not a loyal true-blue class sponsor."

Seniors

"Who asked you, Freshman?"

UPI--Washington--May 1, 1984

Today I witnessed the long anticipated dedication of the monument dedicated to the Era of the Kennedy Dynasty. Capitol Hill was literally bursting at the seams with VIP's.

As I picked my way through the crowd, I noted Dan Nuernberger, the revered leader of the Peace Corps, in a heated discussion with Mr. Carlos Schneider, our Ambassador and USIA correspondent to Brazil, over some late development.

A short distance away I could see two newly appointed members of the Cabinet: the Secretary of the Treasury, Jim Walborg, and Judy Stallmann, the Secretary of Agriculture. For the first time in many years, senatorial approval of these newest members was unanimous.

The science field was not without its representatives. I was surprised that Professor and Madam Becker could fit the event into their busy schedule. It is rumored that they have developed four new math theories that have before remained mysteries.

In the crowd I could see a pressing mob of reporters beseiging some poor unfortunate. Upon investigation, I found that it was none other than America's first woman astronaut, Lynn Ziegler. She had just returned from her third successful flight--an orbit around Venus.

Mr. Wizzard was there, too--or should I say--Mr. Allan Stahl, the "Wizzard of the Physics world." I saw him weaving in and out of the crowd; he seemed to be confused.

A number of the nation's capitalists were running around Washington in a number of Rolls Royces. Members of the "Inner-Circle" present included Mary Ann Kelly, chain store magnate, who stirred up quite a rat's nest last fall when she consolidated Macy's and Gimbel's. When I saw her, she was exchanging ideas with the czar of the business world, Nolan Haefner, the only man known to successfully capitalize in making large businesses out of small ones.

During the afternoon, I counted an infinite number of children running hither and yon, getting lost now and then. Later, I was told that 14 of them belonged to none other than E. J. Harriss, East Coast business tycoon and world champion chess player.

The housewives of America were ably represented by Donna Wolf, the New Betty Crocker of General Mills, and her Home Advisor, Marilyn Zanders.

Julliard School of Music was represented by its Dean, Miss Mary S. Bowers; Cornell U. sent the Head of its Business Department, LeNora McCann; and Hollywood graced the scene with Linda Beatty, glamorous film star.

At one instant this afternoon loud speakers blared the news of the latest anti-Communist uprising. Word has it this uprising was led by a Roger Holle and his compatriot, Larry Smith, an Army parachutist.

Among those present I was sorry not to see Ed. Marsh. It seems Ed's in the process of draining Okefenoke Swamp for future housing development.

Another old friend of mine who did show was Carla Hood, wife and feminine half of Hood & Hood, TV news commentators. They were on hand to cover the show.

After the usual delay, the dedication began with the performance by the New York Philharmonic of a symphony written for the event by the renowned composer and conductor, Rogerio Myroneous Junke.

Following the symphony, the First Lady, Ann Jackson Rockefeller, made a short speech. Her cultural secretary, Joseph R. Behnken, made a few comments, after which the monument was opened to the public.

Mrs. Rockefeller wore a stunning gown designed by Judith Hentzel of the House of Hentzel. Her coiffure was created by Miss Marilynne and Miss Arlene of the Wolf and Burk Fifth Avenue Salon.

The memorial itself is indeed a pleasing sight. Housed within is a statue of JFK supporting a football in his upraised hand, and marching forward, a knapsack on his back. Jackie follows leading the little Kennedys. Also housed in the monument is the PT-109.

After the ceremony, I noticed Colleen Frantz, head nurse at Mayo Clinic, who was in charge of the emergency center for the day, breathe a sigh of relief. In spite of the huge crowd, there were no accidents.

I might add that Fred R. Chilton, the designer of the monument, and Wayne Weidemann, the engineer responsible for its erection, are to be complimented on a fine job.

Mrs. Rod Rockefeller and her fine staff have done it again. Well, done, Washington!
